This court heard argument on Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 61) on September 26, 2012. Near the conclusion of the hearing, Plaintiffs raised an argument that they had not previously raised in their briefs—namely, that Plaintiffs’ claim of breach of fiduciary duty could survive the motion for summary judgment even if this court finds that Plaintiffs had no viable workers’ compensation claims at the time they retained Defendants. Defendants’ counsel then briefly refuted Plaintiffs’ argument though he was unable to prepare in advance to discuss that point.

The court would like for the parties to further explain whether the breach of fiduciary duty claim could remain in this case even if the court were to find that the Plaintiffs had no viable workers’ compensation claims as urged by Defendants in their motion for summary judgment. The parties are directed to file supplemental briefs on this issue on or before October 11, 2012.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
